French Heritage Gathering To Honor Ferland Family

9th French Heritage

by Roger LeCours

HARDWICK - All 13 surviving children of the late Davila and Delina (Bisson) Ferland, along with grandchildren and great-grandchildren, will be honored here Saturday, Aug. 11 at the eighth annual French Heritage Gathering.

Hundreds of Franco-Americans and their friends from throughout the East and Canada are expected to attend the reunion which is held on the Shepard farm meadows off Bridgman Hill Road, a short distance above Hardwick Village. The Gathering is an occasion when Franco-Canadians and others who have an interest in ethnic culture merge in a day-long celebration of singing, dancing, instrumental music, storytelling, and bittersweet remembrance.

The gates open at 10 a.m. There is an admission charge of $5 per person and children under 12 will be admitted free. The entertainment begins at 11 a.m. and the dedication to the Ferland family will be at noon. Food and beverages can be purchased on the site. Families may bring their own picnic lunches and lawn chairs. The organizers of the Gathering stress that it is not necessary to be able to speak French nor be of French-Canadian descent to attend.

A special feature of the Gathering is the honoring of a long-time local family which exemplifies the traditions of Franco-American culture in northern Vermont.

Davila and Delina Ferland raised a family of six daughters and eight sons. Davila was born Nov. 11, 1892 in St. Germaine, Quebec, the son of Louis and Celanire (Rancourt) Ferland. Delina was also born in St. Germaine on April 16, 1895, the daughter of Prospere and Eugenie (Labbe) Bisson.

Davila and Delina were married at St. Germaine on June 30, 1914. They moved to Hardwick in 1915 along with their infant daughter, Marguerite. They first lived on a Bridgman Hill Road farm, remaining there for about five years. Then they moved to a farm on the Center Road, not far from the Greensboro. See HERITAGE, Page Five

YOUR COUSIN
MONSIGNOR TANGUAY
FAMOUS GENEALOGIST

Monsignor Cyprien Tanguay, author of "Dictionnaire Genealogique des Familles Canadiennes", (Genealogical Dictionary of Canadian Families) consisting of seven volumes, is your cousin.

Born in Quebec in 1819, Monsignor Tanguay completed his secondary education at Séminaire de Québec (Quebec Seminary) and at the Collège Ste.-Anne de la Locatière.

Ordained priest in Quebec in 1843, he became vicar at Rimouski (1843-1846), then parish priest at Saint-Raymond (1846-1850), parish priest at Rimouski, where he began to build a church, founded a seminary and a convent for the Sisters of the Congregation Notre Dame, parish priest of St.-Michel of Bellechasse (1859-1862), and of Ste.-Hénédière (1862-1865).

In 1865, Thomas d'Arcy Mc Kee, Agricultural Minister of Quebec, appointed him as archivist at the Bureau of Statistics (1865-1890).

Two years after this appointment, he was sent to Paris by the government to study the archives concerning the ancient documents of the colonial regime in New France; In 1887, the distinguished genealogist received from the Pope the title of Camerier Secret. He died in Ottawa, April 28, 1902, and was interred in Quebec.

LAVERTU FAMILY HISTORY

Our first ancestor in the new world who filled the North American continent with the name "Lavertu" was Jean Guillaume Perron. Married to Joseph^{te} Allaire, Feb. 14, 1757, at St. Joachim, north of Quebec City, he identified himself at that time, simply as Guillaume Perron. However, in his marriage contract before Notary Crespin at St.-Joachim, Jan. 27, 1757, he identified himself as Jean Guillaume Perron dit Lavertu, soldier in the infantry of the Queen's Regiment, in Mr. Lasségat's company.

Our ancestor's family name was originally Peyron, also spelled Peiron, Perron, Peron, Duperron, Duperon. Different variations in the spelling would often depend on the whim of the local pastor, especially at a baptism where the parents were often absent.

The name "Lavertu" appears in the census in 1762 in the parish of St. François de Sale de la Rivière-du-Sud. He called himself simply Jean Lavertu at that time. Over the years Perron became Duperron, a common spelling for his children and grandchildren until the mid 1860's. There were other Perron families in the Quebec area; some were from French Huguenots, and their descendants were quite numerous, so it is quite possible that the Perron dit Lavertu family wanted to distinguish itself from the other Perron families. Our family settled in the Baie St. Paul region, also in Petite-Rivière, the Eboulements, Ile-Aux-Coudres, and Déschambault.

In the census of 1861, the name Duperron is given in the region of Chester, Warwick, St.-Lambert, St.-Jean Chrysostome and in all the eastern townships. In the census of 1871, most of these families had taken the name of Lavertu. Having already changed their name from "Perron" to "Duperron" to distinguish themselves from the Perron family on the north side of the St. Lawrence Seaway, our ancestors changed their name from Duperron to Lavertu. There are probably some distant cousins who have kept the name Duperron.

Jean Guillaume was a soldier and served in the French and Indian Wars, and quite likely did participate in the great victory at Fort Ticonderoga (Carillon) in 1758; which delayed the English conquest of Canada for at least another two years. The name Lavertu signifies force, virtue and courage. According to another source, we owe our name "Lavertu" to Jean Guillaume, who distinguished himself while serving in the French Army.

Avignon was a main center for companies or artisan unions. The builders of the cathedrals of France, especially the companies of masons and carpenters, were required to serve an apprenticeship, called "Tour de France". According to another source, union artists who had completed "Tour de France" would be given a surname to identify their personality during their three year apprenticeship. Carpentry or masonry unions of Provence and more particularly, Avignon, would receive names of virtue: LaVertu, LaBonté, La Charité, or of flowers: LaRose, Bellerose, LaTulippe, etc.

One legend is that Jean Guillaume came to Canada, having completed his "Tour de France", to exercise his professional trade. He may not have been an "engineer", but was an expert mason, and an inspector and contractor of church buildings. He probably contributed to the construction of forts in the French and Indian Wars, more particularly, Fort Carillon (Ticonderoga) and Fort St. Frederic, on Lake Champlain. Also, he must have busied himself in the construction and re-trenching of Fort St.-Jean and Fort Ile-Aux-Noix. Ticonderoga and Ile-Aux-Noix still exist today. If you visit these Forts, examine the masonry structure. These Forts were built by the very hands of our first ancestor.

He was involved in the rebuilding of Quebec as a mason after the siege of 1759. He probably worked on major buildings in the city of Quebec, including the Grand Seminary, which had been fired upon during the siege. He worked eight years on the church of St.-Henri.

We know that he had at least some rudimentary education. He was able to sign his name on documents, a rare ability for the Canadian farmer of those days. It is possible that our ancestor had some schooling through the apprenticeship program.

In oral tradition, Jean Guillaume was a tall man measuring well over 6' tall and weighed over 300 lbs. It was said that he was so strong and his wife so small, that he carried her easily on his arm when they had to walk through the woods or on rough terrain. These are legends, but may well be true.

What language did our ancestor speak? In the 18th Century, French replaced the usage of Latin and Italian. He must have known the Provençal dialect, the language of everyday life in those days, but without doubt his primary language was the old French of Molière.

Jean Guillaume Peron was baptized April 6, 1730 in the church of St. Pierre d'Avignon and there attended religious services. He was the youngest of five children of Joseph Peyron and Marie Auronne (Auron, Audonne, Houron, Olonne) all baptized there. The first thing you see on entering the church, is the baptismal font. Jean Guillaume's father died between 1740 to 1741. His mother probably died between 1741 and 1757.

In researching the Lavertu genealogy in Canada, it was discovered that it was under the Perron name or Duperron dit Lavertu. The ancestor has been known as Cadet Duperron, not because he was an officer, but because he was the youngest in his family. According to information provided, Jean was born and raised in the Belle-Croix or Carrière Square, and St.-Lazare Quartier of Avignon; the Peron family having survived the plague of 1721, when one quarter of the 24,000 people died.

We do not know when Jean Guillaume was recruited into the French Army, but he was an infantry soldier in the Company commanded by Monsieur Lasségat, part of the Queen's Regiment. Volunteers enlisted for at least six years between the ages of sixteen and forty. We know that the French troops who arrived in Quebec in 1755, were battle-trained regulars who had been through ten campaigns in Europe. Jean Guillaume found himself in Canada in 1755 because France and England were preparing for war and, at stake, was the entire North American Continent.

At the end of the French Regime, the Canadian population stood at 75,000. From 1755 to 1760, there were 12,000 to 15,000 men in the Canadian militia, who were Canadian born and all recruited from parishes. There were also Marines, infantry units from France, and their allied Indians. War was a way of life for the early French-Canadian settler, with a plow in one hand, and a rifle in the other. Our ancestor, Jean Guillaume Peron was part of the provisional French troops, as he was sent to Canada for a specific mission, namely, the Seven Year War, as we know it.

In 1755, our ancestor Jean Guillaume, was twenty-five years old. We do not know how long he had been in the military service. The infantry company in which he found himself was commanded by Captain deLasségat (spelled several ways). Recruits had to be between 16 and 40 and at least five feet one inch in height and strong enough to sustain the rigors of campaign. After enrollment, they were sent to border towns of Eastern France. The French armies were made up of strictly volunteers which was not the call for the Canadian Militia. Concerning our ancestor, Jean Guillaume, we don't see all the minute details of his everyday life, but in tracking down his regiment's military expeditions, we can imagine how difficult a soldier's life must have been in the primitive conditions of Canada's primeval forests, and coping with the savages' extreme cruelty.

Our ancestor served with the Queen's Regiment or Queen's Brigade. Receiving the call to arms in 1755, the two battalions of the Queen's Regiment (La Reine) marched on to Rochefort, one of them headed for Canada. Our ancestor sailed to Canada on the Algonquin, a naval ship, one of two built at Quebec between 1750 to 1752, and equipped for war. The Algonquin might have been at Rochefort for repairs in 1755. It is not known whether the Queen's Regiment went first to Rochefort, and then to Brest; but Queen's Regiment was in Brest on April 13, 1755 and embarked for Canada on April 14, 1755, comprised of nine infantry units, 360 soldiers and 21 officers. The Captain of the ship was Laniléon. It had 22 naval officers and 300 sailors. Thus, 703 sailors, soldiers, and officers sailed on the Algonquin on its voyage to New France in the Spring of 1755, in a fleet of eleven war vessels and three others. The total of troops was 3336 on their way to Canada. But after embarking, the ships had to wait for favorable winds until May 3, 1755. Jean Guillaume, therefore, departed from France, May 3, 1755, never to return.

The soldiers on board were given a hammock in which to sleep; one hammock to two soldiers, so they took turns sleeping. Some found the roll of the ocean horrible and continuous. Live animals were kept near the cooking galleys and slaughtered for food. Religious services and catechism lessons were held on the bridge. Montcalm states in his journal "we pray to God three times a day; in the morning, evening before the meal, and the liturgy of the Blessed Virgin at nightfall. Sundays and holy days we have vespers on the bridge. Bad weather can cause religious services to be cancelled". The bridge and decks were also the location for entertainment. In the passage between Newfoundland and Cape Breton they encountered heavy fog and were anxious about icebergs, according to another journal, and it states that they did see a huge iceberg once on a clear night.

On Tuesday, June 10, they entered the Gulf of St. Lawrence and saw the Island of St. Paul (St. Paul?), Isle Royale (Cape Breton) and that of Newfoundland. Up to this point, the total journey was 2757 miles, or 799 and 1/6 leagues. There remained another 200 leagues to Quebec. Therefore, from Brest to Quebec is 1000 leagues or 3450 miles. On Fri. June 20, at 2:00 P.M. the Algonquin anchored in Quebec, but it was not until Mon. June 23, 2:30 P.M., that Jean Guillaume set foot in Quebec. One of the reasons was probably the large fire that had raged in Quebec about 2 weeks before. The hospital had burned to the ground and also a large part of the barracks.

As for a military uniform, our ancestor wore a white uniform. The English wore "red coats". The French wore "white coats". The uniforms were white and regiments were distinguished by the color of their buttons and trim - blue, red, yellow or violet; they wore black three-cornered hats and gaiters, generally black, from the foot to the knee. On leaving France, they were each given a rifle with bayonet. They were also given other clothing and necessities, including tobacco.

The year 1755 was an extraordinary one in the life of our ancestor. From Provençe, to Rochefort, to Brest, across the Atlantic Ocean to the Grand Banks in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, on to Quebec, to Montreal, to the fort at St. Frederic (Crown Point), to Fort Carillon (Ticonderoga), south shore of Lac St. Sacrament (Lake George) near Albany, N.Y., back to St. Frederick and on to Montreal. Fort Frederic was reconstructed and construction was started on Fort Carillon, originally called Fort Vaudreuil,

The Marquis de Montcalm, a French General, who later lost the battle of Quebec for control of Canada, to the British, arrived in Canada on May 12, 1756. Montcalm left for Fort Carillon on June 27, 1756, and it was there on the beach that our ancestor first saw him. Our ancestor passed the summer of 1756 at Lake Champlain. On Nov. 2, the Queen's Battalion left Fort Carillon for the winter quarters which stretched from the southern shore at Beaupré as far north as St.-Joachim Parish. The winter of 1756-57 was very harsh.

On June 27, 1757, Jean Guillaume Perron dit Lavertu ("dit" means "also known as" in French) was married to Marie Josette (French variation is Josephette) Allaire, by legal contract before the public notary Crespin at St. Joachim. Some of the soldiers were boarded for the winter with villagers and it is possible that our ancestor met his future wife that way. Josette was born in or about 1739 because she was eighteen years old when the marriage contract was signed. She was the daughter of deceased Jean Etienne Allaire IV and Madeleine Fontaine, who had been married by notary Michon March 13, 1738. Josette must have been the oldest and she had two brothers - Louis and Pierre François. Josette's father Jean Allaire IV, was the son of Jean Allaire III and Marie Anne Mercier. Her father was born in 1712 and had been given a farm at St. François de la Rivière-du-Sud. He lived in Berthier in the County of Montmagny from 1740-1748 where his three children were born. He was buried at St. François de Montmagny Jan. 19, 1750. Jean Etienne Allaire IV's brothers and sisters were Catherine, Joseph, François, Etienne, Marie Anne, Louis, and Pierre Marie. Jean Guillaume married into a large family of cousins, uncles and aunts.

Jean Allaire III was born in 1689 and died Feb. 5, 1744. He was the husband of Marie Anne Mercier and was the elder son of Jean II. Jean II was himself the elder son of the preceding generation of the Allaire family. Jean IV was in the 5th generation. Josette, the wife of our first ancestor, was orphaned at eleven, and she had only her grandmother Marie Anne Mercier, although her maternal grandmother may have still been living in St. François. Her grandmother, Marie Anne Mercier had remarried to Joseph Duchenne.

The witnesses to Jean Guillaume's marriage included two sergeants from his company, Pierre Quatrepages dit Beausoleil, and Pierre Paul Girmas dit Germain, and also Nicolas Gambon, a soldier in the same regiment, who was probably Jean's close friend and companion of war. (The reproduction of the marriage contract, and those of later descendants are in the Lavertu genealogy book.) It was necessary for the soldiers to obtain a special dispensation from the Commander of the armies in order to marry. Montcalm was in Quebec for New Years until Jan. 31, 1757, at which time he left for Montreal to prepare the year's military campaigns. He must have signed the dispensation just before leaving. After publication of three bans of marriage, the nuptial blessing was given to them "according to the rites of the Virgin Mother, and of the Roman Catholic Church" on Feb. 14, 1757 at St. Joachim.

In the summer of 1757, our ancestor was at the Falls Camp, situated on the Falls River between Lac St. Sacrament (Lake George) and Lake Champlain. This place was known to the English as Bald Mountain and today as Roger's Rock. During the month of July, our ancestor was occupied in making preparations for war. At that camp on July 28, a large war council was held with 1800 Indian warriors from 40 different nations. Montcalm was present, and our ancestor was probably witness to the most significant Indian event of the century. In August, the Queen's Brigade was involved in the siege of Fort William Henry. After the surrender the French Troops were not able to prevent the massacre by the Indians of the people in the Fort and the taking of several hundred prisoners. The French were never able to control the Indians in their ferocious savagery and cannibalistic practices. Montcalm decided not to go on to Fort Edward. If he had done so, he could well have become master of the entire North American continent. In Sept., the Queen's Regiment settled at Fort St. John to make needed repairs and fortifications. Oct. 24, they started their march to Quebec to pass the winter.

In the beginning of the winter of 1758, the famine due to a poor harvest was serious. Also, because of the situation in France, the battalions had not been paid for months; and an epidemic had been brought over by some of the troop ships.

Jean Guillaume Perron II was baptized Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, 1757, at St. Joachim. He was the first Lavertu descendant in America. His father, Jean Guillaume was quartered in Quebec that winter. The Baptism Act is signed by "Jean Guillaume Peiron". (Note name spelling). The grandfather-in-law, Joseph Duchenne was the Godfather. The Godmother was Marie Louise Poulin. It is quite possible that our ancestor had been able to receive a dispensation to stay in St. Joachim for the winter instead of in Quebec.

Quebec was suffering and people perishing from hunger and misery. The Queen's Battalion left on May 14, 1758 for Carillon (Fort Ticonderoga). The weather was bad May 15 to June 15. This year's crop would not fare much better. The planting season was poor because of heavy rains. The frost at night destroyed the planted vegetables, and the people had had very little bread for a year.

The shining star throughout the 1758 campaign was the important battle at Fort Carillon (Ticonderoga) at which our ancestor, Jean Guillaume, was present. When Montcalm passed before the troops, they would shout "Long live the King! Long live the General!" When Montcalm had given his last instructions, he turned to the Sulpician priest, Francois Picquet, and asked him to bless the troops. (The description of the battle is in our Lavertu book). Among the dead was Girmas or Germain, our first ancestor's Sergeant who had been a witness at Jean Guillaume's marriage. The Queen's Battalion particularly distinguished itself in this battle. The Battle of Carillon (Ticonderoga) is remarkable in that the two sides fought almost the entire day, July 8, 1758. It was fought with bayonet and hand-to-hand combat. Jean Guillaume must have stayed behind at Carillon (Ticonderoga) to fortify the Fort for the following year. The campaign of 1758 ended around Nov. 1. The army left for Quebec from the 1st to the 6th. Winter came early and was unseasonably cold. Our ancestor returned to his small family for the winter in St. Joachim.

The French thought that the English would attack through Lake Champlain rather than in Quebec in 1759, so the troops departed from Quebec the first days of May. Therefore, we find Jean Guillaume at Lake Champlain for the 1759 campaign and he was not present for the Siege of Quebec on June 26, 1759. The inhabitants on both sides of the bank of the St. Laurence River were told to flee to the forests with wives, children, cattle and provisions. The priests were to say Mass in cabins. It was now dangerous to stray off into the outskirts because the Indians had become useless because of their excessive use of alcohol, and were pillaging and devastating the countryside and brutalizing their victims. We can imagine how constantly in fear Marie Josette must have been. The mother of all the Lavertus had a one and a half year old son, Jean Guillaume II. Her second son Louis (the grandfather of Jean Lavertu who emigrated to Madawska, Maine and started ~~that~~ branch of the Lavertu family), was baptized in St. Augustin on Nov. 16, 1760. Marie Josette Allaire is caught between the gunfire of the English on the East, and the brutality of the savages in the virgin forests of the West.

In the middle of Aug. 1759, British General Wolfe issued a proclamation. Because the inhabitants of St. Joachim had committed barbaric acts against his troops; he sent rangers to destroy their habitations. Where resistance was shown, homes and villages were burned. Parishes of St. Paul, Ange-Gardien, Chateau-Richer, St.-Joachim were destroyed by fire and sword, and the fires could be seen burning in Quebec and even in Cap Tourmente. The pastor of St. Joachim, Rabineau de Portneuf, who had married Jean and Marie Josette, took command of thirty parishioners and a stone house in Chateau-Richer and they were all killed. Orders were given to kill all the prisoners. There is a plaque on the church at St. Joachim commemorating this heroic priest. Josette Allaire and her family had probably fled before the arrival of the English.

The 1759 campaign was an uneventful one for our ancestor, having spent it making repairs, retrenching and patrol skirmishes. The French evacuated Carillon (Ticonderoga) and dynamited it. Then on to Fort St. Frederic (Crown Point) and then to Ile-Aux-Noix on the way to Montreal. There, they learned of Quebec's capitulation and the death of Montcalm. Our ancestor spent five of his six military campaigns on Lake Champlain.

In addition to Carrilon (Ticonderoga), he also worked on Fort St. Frederic (Crown Point) and Ile-Aux-Noix. In memory of our ancestor, Jean Lavertu, to see, smell, hear and touch what he must have experienced over two hundred years ago, this particular fort, Ticonderoga, must be visited.

They do not know if Jean Lavertu was able to see his wife during that particular winter. His second son, Louis, was born Nov. 16, 1760 in the parish of St. Augustin. It is mentioned in the writings of the genealogist Tanguay, that Jean Guillaume sought refuge at St.-Augustin after the war. It was always hoped that France would come to the rescue. The French troops left Montreal for Quebec on Apr. 20, 1760, hoping to recapture Quebec. This was one of the worst battles of the war in terms of casualties. The French could have had Quebec, but missed the opportunity, and the English reorganized, and with an approaching English fleet, the French pulled back and left for Montreal. The last battle was fought at St. Foy, and the Queen's Regiment participated there. St. Foy's glory has been passed over by history because two opposing Generals were killed in the battle of the Plains of Abraham (Quebec). The French were trapped at Montreal at the Fort at St. Hélène Island and surrendered to the English.

The war was over and our ancestor had to decide whether to return to France or stay in Canada. The Queen's Regiment sailed for France on Sept. 16, 1760. One of the terms of surrender was that the Canadians were free to leave for France or stay in Canada. We do not know whether the French soldiers were given the same choice. Folk stories of the Lavertu family mention that our ancestor was in hiding. "Tanguay" states that he had taken refuge in St. Augustin, where his second son was born.

In the census of 1762, we find Jean Guillaume at St.-François-de-Sales de la Rivière-du-Sud, with wife, two male children and one female child under 15 years, one-quarter acre, a growing crop, one cow. The Allaire family lived in St.-François and our relative probably chose to live there because St. Joachim was in ruins as a result of the war. The next four children of Jean and Josette Lavertu were born in St. François. Marie Josette was born Oct. 8, 1762 and baptized the next day, Oct. 9. Marie Françoise was born Dec. 10, 1763. Marie Rose was born Feb. 27, 1767. Marie Charles Peiron was born Mar. 15, 1769. The father was not present at any of the baptisms in St. François. We do not know with whom the family lived.

Near the Etchemin River was a neighborhood known as "Village de Ste.-Geneviève de la Cote St. Henri" and it is here that St.-Henri village originated. From 1737 to 1747, we see familiar settlers' names; Vermette (ancestors of Marie Vermette, wife of Louis Duperron dit Lavertu among them). In the village of St.-Geneviève, our ancestor and his family went to the little chapel to pray and receive the blessings of their devoted missionary priests, Youville, Hubert, and Berthiaume. On Oct. 4, 1766, we find a grant of land by Richard Murray to Jean Guillaume Peyron, of the Rivière-du-Sud, of a parcel 5 acres by 30, situated on the Etchemin River, south of St. Henri. These Peyrons were later known as Duperron and then Lavertu. So Jean Lavertu was a landowner in St.-Henri in 1765. We don't know whether he farmed. He was a mason by trade. His children continued to be baptized in St. François. It is probable that his family continued to live in St. François with Josette's family while he lived nearer to his work. Because of the destruction caused by the war, most of his work must have been in Quebec which was closer to St.-Henri than to St.-François.

In the summer of 1763, the peace treaty was finally concluded between France and England, and the colony remained in English hands. Prosperity appeared because there was no military service and men could work at home. Affluent Frenchmen moved to other French colonies, and only the English could afford to buy their property. On June 20, 1774 King George signed an act that guaranteed complete freedom of religion, the French language, French civil law, and the right of religious authorities to impose tithes. There was an impending American revolution and England passed this legislation because it feared an association between Quebec and the American colonies. It is due to this legislation that the French language and culture is still alive in North America, and that the French nation of Quebec still survives to this day.

In 1775, two armies of the United States Congress were marching to invade Canada, one led by Benedict Arnold. Was our ancestor for or against the American cause? He possibly still nourished a hatred for the English due to the wars. Having learned that the French were fighting for the Americans, he may have thought that by supporting the Americans, Canada might possibly revert to France. The harshness of the English rule had not won over the loyalty of the French-Canadian.

In Oct. 1781. Rev. Joseph Marie Vézina was named first priest in the parish of St.-Henri. In the first registry of their parish from May 5, 1775 to Mar. 24, 1778, appears the name of Jean Guillaume Perron, dated 1777. Before, the records for St.-Henri were kept with the registry of the church of St. Joseph of Point Levy. The years 1781 to 1787 were troublesome to Jean Guillaume because of the controversy concerning the site of the new church at St. Henri. At that time it was the French custom to tax each inhabitant according to the size of his land-holding for the church construction costs. Four representatives were elected as a committee organized to oversee the payment of expenses for the new church. Jean Lavertu was one of them. Some of the farmers who did not want the location picked, refused to agree to the construction, and had as their leader a "Frenchman" by the name of Jean Duperron dit Lavertu.

The site of the new church at St. Henri was three miles away from the original primitive chapel. The architect was Louis J. Langevin. Jean Duperron and Jean Penin of St. Henri were the masons. We take pride in the fact that our ancestor was the master mason in charge of building this church which lasted a century, and we know that it was built solidly. It was demolished in 1880 only because it had become too small. We can compare it to the church of St. Pierre on the Ile d'Orleans which still stands today. One of the first marriages reported in the registry was that of Jean-Baptiste Forçade of Rittberg, Berlin, of Prussia and Marie Françoise Duperron, daughter of Jean and Josette.

What is surprising, is that Jean Guillaume, despite his opposition to the construction of the new church, was one of the two masons hired. He was not in the good graces of Bishop Briand, Sept. 6, 1782 when the Bishop wrote to Father Vézina of St. Henri, that the church would be built despite Jean Guillaume's efforts to prevent it. Could Jean Guillaume's stubbornness be a hereditary trait among the Lavertus of today?

In the summer of 1786, we find our ancestor embroiled in another controversy. It was over repairs to the church of St.-Joseph of Point Levy or construction of a new one, and the site of a new one. Our ancestor had previously belonged to the parish of St.-Joseph, and now lived in the upper region in the new parish of St.-Henri. In June 1786, the parish was divided into two camps, the upper region and the lower region. The farmers of Etchemin, the upper region, had the church inspected by four experts, one of which was Jean Duperron, a mason from ST.-Henri. The four reported that the walls would have to be rebuilt, but the frame work was good, but under stress; the bell tower would have to be rebuilt, and the rose window was shattered. Experts from the opposing side reported that if it were well-repaired, it would last fifty years. The controversy lasted ten years. July 22, 1790, the church was struck by lightning and was repaired.

In the decade 1780 to 1790, the region of Quebec was enshrouded in deep darkness on several occasions in the middle of the day, sometimes followed by rain and thunderstorms, and sometimes there was heavy fog in Oct. which lasted until late in the morning. These stories were passed down through generations. In the folk tradition of the Lavertu family in Madawaska, Me., it was said that our ancestor used to sit on his porch, and when he heard thunder he would say it reminded him of shell fire during the war. It is amazing that this recollection of a saying from our first ancestor has survived to this day.

We are not sure when our ancestor relocated to Saint-Henri. As stated previously, we have the baptismal dates of the four children baptized at St.-Francois through 1769. One daughter (name unknown) was baptized May 1, 1770 at St. Henri. Véronique was baptized there Oct. 20, 1771. One child (name unknown) died NOV. 10, 1771 at St.-Henri. Jean Guillaume very likely built a temporary lodging in the first years at St.-Henri. Settlers had to satisfy certain conditions before they were granted land. We know that he was granted land in 1765, at St.-Henri, on the banks of the Etchemin River and he may have begun to clear the land then. He may have been able to pay for the grant in cash since he was a tradesman, and his wife was an heir to her family fortune. In 1770, his two sons, Jean Guillaume and Louis, were eleven and thirteen and beginning to be old enough to work on the land. We believe that his land was located in the first row southwest, the south bank of the Etchemin. His sons and sons-in-law almost all settled on land southwest of this first row in territory which extends to the Chaudière River in the present-day area of St.-Jean Chrysostome and Breakeyville.

In the decade of 1780-1790 seven of our ancestors ten children marry. All this took place during the construction of the church in St.-Henri. At the time of Marie Magdeleine's baptism in 1778, the children were aged as follows: Jean Guillaume, Jr., 21; Louis, 18; Marc Joseph, 16; Marie Françoise, 17; Marie Rose, 11; Marie Charles, 9. The two older boys are old enough to take care of the family farm while their father works as a mason.

Marie Rose is the first child to be married. She was only 15 years and 11 months old, born Feb. 17, 1767 at St. François of Rivière-du-Sud, when she married Jean Baptiste Huard on Jan. 13, 1783. (The Lavertu book gives much information on all the families into which Jean Guillaume's children marry, but that information is not going to be included here.) Her father and two brothers were among the witnesses. Jean Guillaume II and Louis were married the next year.

Louis was 25 years old when he married Marie Vermette Aug. 23, 1784. Louis is said to be "a farmer living in the parish of St.-Henri in the Seigneury of Lauzon, son of Jean Guillaume and Marie Josephe Hilaire" (note spelling). The marriage was across the river in St. Augustin. Jean Guillaume I was one of the witnesses. It can be said with certainty that 200 years later, after the union of these two persons, the progeny of this particular family constitutes well over half of all the present Lavertus in North America.

Jean Guillaume Duperron II, the oldest, was married at St. Henri, Nov. 22, 1784 to Marie Magdeleine Simmoneau (also Simoneau), dit Sanschagrín. Among those present were Jean Guillaume I, and her brother Louis Duperron, witnesses.

The fourth marriage was that of Marie Josette Duperron and Charles Couture. She was baptized Oct. 9, 1762 at St. François of Rivière-du-Sud and was 24 years when she married at St.-Henri on Jan. 9, 1786. Her two brothers, Jean Guillaume II and Louis are among the witnesses. The marriage contract was signed Dec. 22, 1785 before Notary Perthelot d'Artiguy. Jean Guillaume I does not appear as a witness.

Marie Françoise Duperron married Jean Baptiste Forçade May 21, 1787 and was the third daughter to be married.

Véronique Duperron was the fourth daughter to be married. She was born Oct. 20, 1771 at St. Henri, and was married to Jean Baptiste Boutin, Nov. 9, 1789. Among the witnesses were her two brothers, Jean Guillaume II and Louis. Their marriage contract was signed Nov. 1, 1789 before Royal Notary Miray. Among the witnesses were Sire Jean Guillaume Duperron and Josephte Allere (note spelling), her parents, and her brothers Jean Guillaume II and Louis.

Marie Reine Duperron, daughter of Jean Guillaume Duperron and Marie Josephte Aller (note spelling) was married to Louis Francois Roberge of the parish St.-Joseph of Pointe Levy. Among the witnesses was her brother Jean Guillaume Duperron (note spelling) and their marriage is celebrated by Rev. Vézina, pastor of St. Henri. Our family researchers (James Lavertu - Madawaska, Me.) have not been able to find her baptismal record in St.-Henri and St. François. It is possible she was born 1759-1762, after the birth of Louis in St. Augustin and before Marie Josephe at St. François.

The next marriage is that of Marie Marguerite who married Louis-Marie Gaudreau Aug. 16, 1802. She was baptized at St.-Henri May 24, 1778 and was 24 years when she married widower Gaudreau. Jean Guillaume was 72 years and Josette was 63 years at this time. Among the witnesses were Jean Duperont (note spelling) dit Lavertu, her father, and Pierre and Louis Duperront, (note spelling), her two brothers. Their marriage contract was before Notary Louis Miray at St. Joseph of Point Levy.

Jean Guillaume I lived long enough to see the marriages of his two younger sons, Pierre and Charles.

Pierre's marriage contract was before Notary Louis Miray on Jan. 21, 1805 to Marguarite Couture. The researchers have been unable to find the baptism record for Pierre Duperron so do not know his age when the marriage took place Jan. 28, 1805 at Lauzon at St. Joseph of Levy.

Charles Duperron signed his marriage contract on Jan. 21, 1807, and married Agathe Samson at Pointe Levy. Among the witnesses are his two brothers, Louis and Pierre.

Louis Duperron, second son, and Marie Vermette had fifteen children between 1785 and 1807 as follows: Louis born in 1785, married in 1805 to Geneviève Dagneau dit Laprise (this is our direct line of Lavertus); Jean, born in 1787, married in 1808 to Theole Ferland; Marie, born in 1789 and deceased in 1791; Josephte, born in 1790, married in 1811 to François Roberge; Marie Magdaline, born in 1792; Marie Françoise, born and deceased in 1793; Ignace, born in 1794 and deceased in 1795; François, (soldier, and grandfather of Edward Lavertu who settled and established the Lavertus in Madawaska, Maine and whose descendant researched and compiled the Lavertu family history book - James Lavertu) born in 1795 and married in 1813 to Marie Blanchette; Olivier, born in 1797 and married in 1817 to Angele Dagneau dit Laprise. Marie, born in 1800 and married to Olivier Robert; M. Marguerite, born and deceased in 1802; Ignace, born and deceased in 1803; Germain, born and deceased in 1805. Marie Claire, born and deceased in 1806; and Antoine, born and deceased in 1807.

Louis, eldest son of Louis Duperron and Marie Vermette, married Genevieve Dagneau dit Laprise Jan. 14, 1805 at St.-Henri. He was 19 years old and his contract of marriage was notarized Dec. 28, 1804. Among the witnesses were Sire Louis Duperron, his father; Dame Marie Vermette, his mother, Sire Jean Guillaume Dupéron dit Lavertu, his paternal grandfather; and Sire Pierre Dupéron, his paternal uncle.

The homestead of Louis Duperron and Marie Vermette was transferred by special inheritance rites to Louis Lavertu II (1805 - Geneviève Dagneau). This is called "Inter Vivos" which is a testamentary transfer which takes effect before death, subject to conditions imposed on the donee during the donor's lifetime. This Louis Lavertu II, is the ancestor of the Lavertus at St.-Damien and St. Lazare of today, (this is our line, and Joseph Leon Luc Lavertu's grandfather was from there) as well as a Lavertu family branch established in Augusta and Lewiston in Maine (as mentioned before a different branch was established in Madawaska, Maine).

Jean Guillaume Duperron II married Marie Magdeline Simmoneau and had ten children. They are listed in the book with spouses but are not in our direct line so are not listed here. Several died young. One grandson was Étienne, and quite a few members of his family emigrated to the United States.

The period 1791 to 1840 was a troubled one for the French-Canadians. The American Revolution was taking place and also the French Revolution. Revolutionary sentiments persisted in the Province of Quebec, although the British parliament passed the Quebec Act which as stated before, guaranteed the French-Canadians their religion and civil law. The Catholic clergy in general tried to stifle this spirit of rebellion and exhorted the parishioners to submit to the English government, especially since after the French Revolution France became anti-clerical, burning churches and banishing priests. Many of these banished priests came to Canada, Maine, and other Franco-American parishes. Feb. 1, 1793, France declared war on the Canadian colonies. Spies were sent to Canada and American pamphlets were circulated in the rural areas, including St.-Henri, causing unrest among the uneducated and trusting inhabitants.

We wonder what was Jean Guillaume Lavertu's reaction to the Revolutionary spirit of that time; he who was of French origin, former soldier against the English, and reduced to the humiliation of living under its subjugation. Did he correspond with his family in France for the news of the events taking place there?

The conflict which existed in Canada in those years was quite complex. New France became Lower Canada, including Montreal. The loyalists had settled in Upper Canada which was the regions of Cornwall, Toronto, Ottawa and along the boundary of the Province of Ontario and New York. The English were in the minority in Quebec, and the Quebec Parliament, from the beginning was composed of French-speaking Canadians.

In 1795, a new law was passed which obligated landowners to pay a certain sum or contribute labor, for the construction of roads and bridges. This system of taxation was under the surveillance of a chief inspector and sub-inspectors. Jan. 1, 1791 a group of citizens from St. Joseph of Pointe Levy, seized a group of sub-inspectors, so sheriffs were sent to arrest the people, and the sheriffs were attacked by the general population of Pointe Levy. But the law prevailed and the principal actors were arrested. Included, were two named François Roberge and Louis Gaudreau, who may have been sons-in-law of Jean Guillaume Duperron. If they were, we can easily imagine that the prevailing sentiment in the Lavertu family at that time was pro-American.

The Constitutional government of 1792 had enacted the Militia Act. This legislation required each community to form a militia for the country's defense. The governor of Lower Canada, testing the habitant's loyalty, decided to call up a part of the militia in 1807. On Wed. Sept. 2, at 10:00 AM certain officers arriving in St.-Henri found that the men at the militia had not been organized and put on file and in order. Some of the recruits were not obeying and trouble started which was finally controlled. To set an example for the other parishes, about twenty-four of the principal actors were arrested, among whom were Pierre Duperron and Charles Duperron, both from the Penin settlement and Jean Baptiste Boutin, who was probably their brother-in-law. We see again another instance of revolt within the Lavertu family. Our first ancestor, Jean Guillaume was still living and was 77 years old. What did he think of all this? We can imagine that he was against the establishment. That was the prevailing sentiments of the inhabitants of St.-Henri in those days.

Jean Guillaume died at St.-Henri at age 78 years and 9 months on Jan. 11, 1809. According to oral legend, two of his sons had come to visit him at home, and each had a dog, both quite big and vicious. Because of wolves in Quebec, settlers had large dogs. The two dogs were growling at each other and no one could control them, so old Jean Guillaume got up, took each by the collar separating them holding each one at the end of his arms, which required a great deal of strength. It is said that he went to sit down, and he died peacefully in his chair, probably from a heart attack. So, this is the story of the death of the first Lavertu in America.

Canadian politics were getting more and more complicated in the years 1812 to 1815. Napoleon was waging war in Europe. The United States was becoming bigger, France was flexing it's muscles; and England was nervous. On June 18, 1812, the United States declared war against Great Britain and the Province of Quebec suddenly found itself engaged in a new conflict. The United States never thought that the French-Canadians would ever resist an invasion of Canada; it was thought that all French and English Canadians would rally to the American cause. In the battle of Chateauguay, a key victory in the battle of 1812, the battle was fought and won by French-Canadian troops. The Lavertu family contributed one of it's own to the war of 1812. François, son of Louis Lavertu I and Marie Vermette, grandson of Jean Guillaume, finds himself on the frontline of the defense of Canada against the American Army, which had attempted to invade Canada Tues. Oct. 26, 1813 on the Chateauguay River. He was in the second battalion, company of Pierre Weilbrenner. François was 17 years old in 1812. He was one of 15 children as previously stated. Among his brothers are Louis, father of François-Xavier and ancestor of the Lavertus established at St.-Damien and St.-Lazare, (this is our direct line of ancestry). Jean Lavertu married to Theole Ferland, ancestor of the Lavertus from the region of St.-Jean. Olivier Lavertu, married to Angele Dagneau, whose grandson, Pierre, married Dalilas Lemieux, and who is the ancestor of the Lavertus established in Western Canada. François was the father of Jean Lavertu, the first Lavertu to establish himself in Madawaska, Maine.

Another oral legend -- When the war was over, François started on his way home. He had left on foot - back then people traveled on foot. He arrives at a store. There was an old white horse with it's haunches sticking out and it's head hanging low. François was telling people at the store that he was on his way home from the war. The man with the old white horse told him "I'm going your way. I come to bring a load of wood and I have to go back that way, across the river, (possibly the St. Laurence River; the only good road in those days between Montreal and Quebec was on the northwest shore). "Come with me, I'll give you a ride". François did not believe that he would ever get there with that old horse. It was really just an old pile of flesh. Well, François said, he never had such a ride.! It went so fast -- there were a lot of humps and holes back then - the roads were not plowed -- it went right over the bumps. He could not get over the energy this old horse had. Then the man with the wagon said, "I can't fatten this horse. if I did, I wouldn't be able to handle it; it would kill me! So I keep it like it this, weak; it's just right". This is an old "by the fireplace" anecdote passed from generation to generation. Is the story true? We do know there was a François Duperron in the Select Militia under the command of a Pierre Weilbrenner, captain.

The years 1810 - 1830 were prosperous in Quebec, and there was an influx of non-French Europeans. Some came to the seignory of Lauzon; English and Scotch soldiers and German mercenaries. Some were granted land and those that stayed in Lauzon were assimilated to the French civilization. Under the seigniorial system, the settlers were tenants, having to pay rent to their squire. The settlers did not have to come up with a large sum of money and they lived a simple life. The non-French were not able to adapt to this style of life. It wasn't profitable enough; therefore they went elsewhere. All the regulations pertaining to the seigniorial system are not included here, but are in the Lavertu book. Among the rules, settlers had to clear and till four acres of land during a period of ten consecutive years.

If there is ever a cradle settlement of the great Lavertu family, it is probably the Penin settlement. The name Penin originated from the name of an old trapper who first lived in that particular region of St.-Henri, known today under the name of St.-Jean Chrysostome, and who gave his name to a small brook which runs relatively parallel to the Penin Road. Jean Penin was an expert mason, and with Jean Guillaume Lavertu, had inspected the damage at the church of St.-Joseph of Levy. Our researcher has seen the settlement grants of Pierre and Charles, sons of Jean Guillaume, in the Penin settlement, as well as those of sons-in-law. Among registries of grants in the Penin Settlement are Guillaume Duperron, Mar. 15, 1798; Louis Duperron, June 10, 1799; Guillaume Duperron, Aug. 12, 1800; Pierre Duperron, July 4, 1809; Charles Duperron, July 26, 1809; son-in-law Jean Baptiste Boutin, Nov. 18, 1807. Many descendants of these Lavertus live in this area. An old rifle, which supposedly belonged to our first ancestor, and which supposedly carried his initials, was unfortunately given away by mistake to an antique dealer in the last 10 to 20 years, and was never seen again.

In the years 1800 to 1850, the Lavertu family greatly increased as we can see in the church registry of St.-Henri and St.-Jean Chrysostome. It is therefore this small settlement where most of our ancestors were born. The settlers of this settlement held a hearing to settle the location of their road May 27, 1813. Landowners present included François Duperron, Pierre Lavertu and brothers-in-law Louis Gaudreau and Charles Couture. In the Lavertu book is a complete description of buildings, furnishings, all the work done, the whole way of life which cannot be included here, but is very interesting. One detail - that everyone carried a knife on their person, even women and girls, because of constant danger of Indian attacks. Also included were the details of their leisure life. Every feast day, holiday, Sunday, they visited one another to celebrate and have fun, to dance, play cards and eat the food in season. Almost every household had a violin. They celebrated at horse races, cock fights, children's baptisms, weddings (which lasted at least three days and three nights), the time from Midnight Mass, at the "reveillon", until the eve of Ash SaTURDAY. Christmas was the first day of a fun-filled week which lasted until New Year's Day. New Year's Eve, the young men went door to door to collect food for the poor which was called the "guignolée". Our early ancestors were isolated on their little farms in the woods. How to stimulate the mind in such desolate settings? The habitant could spend a whole night talking about the old country, and listening to the old tales heard from their fathers and ancestors. They were superstitious, so common among uneducated people, and had many legends and stories on witchcraft which they told; and they believed in ghosts called "revenants"; that is people coming back from the dead.

The people of the Seigneory of Lauzon, who had settled on the peninsula formed by the two rivers, Etchemin and Chaudière, petitioned the Bishop of Quebec, on Aug. 1, 1828, for a new parish under the name of St.-Jerome. The church of St.-Joseph of Pointe Levy was over nine miles away and the Etchemin River would swell and prevent the settlers from attending there. The parish of St. Jerome decided to change it's name to St.-Jean Chrysostome, and as stated before, this is the cradle of the Lavertu family, and truly is the birthplace of our first ancestors. Most of our first ancestor's children were born and raised in the Penin Settlement. On Sept. 27, 1830, the settlers requested a resident priest. The first one was Monsignor François-Xavier Leduc, who was replaced by the next year by Monsignor Jean-Baptiste Daveluy. Daveluy baptized many of our Lavertu ancestors.

The usual controversy over the location of the church, occurred, which involved the settlements of Taniata, Beaulieu, Penin Settlement, Belair, Terrebonne, St.-Romain, and Maringounière. July 1, 1829, Bishop Signoy went himself to the site and decided on the location in Taniata, where the church of St. Jean Chrysostome proudly stands today. On Mar. 20, 1835, the Bishop stopped plans for the construction because of a new problem, that of the Irish. Several families speaking English had established themselves in St.-Jean Chrysostome and were requesting a priest who could speak English. Daveluy could not, so Monsignor Pierre Beaumont replaced him in 1837. He spoke English and placated the two ethnic groups so well, that in 1841, the site for the new church was again located. The church was finished May 7, 1849.

In the years 1820 to 1850 the ever increasing number of families forced the authorities to open up new areas of colonization. In 1827, Parliament prepared legislation for the construction of major roads. The beautiful valley of the St. John River was proposed as a land of rich soil which one day would be one of the richest parts of the country. This territory was the Eastern Townships. The United States was claiming a part of this territory and this dispute was finally settled in 1842 with the Webster-Ashburton Treaty by which 700 square miles of "Canadian soil" was given up" to the United States. More than 2000 "French-Canadians" in the St. John Valley passed over to the American territory, along with millions of acres of land. It divided the French-Acadian population on both sides of the river.

Thousands of immigrants arrived in the port of Quebec in the years 1825 to 1831. Many brought sickness and the plague (cholera). The immigration efforts were a way of counter-balancing the ever-increasing number of French-Canadian families by the English government. In addition to the cholera epidemic, the Lauzon area was afflicted with three years of famine. On Jan. 30, 1834, the inhabitants of St. Henri requested help from their legislature. There was rain, hail, and frosts. Half of the parish had no bread left, hardly any potatoes, and there were many who had no seed left. The Craig Road was constructed 1810-1812, which facilitated the colonization of the Eastern Townships and which gave Quebec some hope of independence, and means of acquiring the necessities of life for an ever-increasing population. Even with the Craig Road, the colonization did not start until 1830 to 1850. There was a depression 1835 to 1840, which affected mostly the Eastern Townships, the farmers of the Montreal region, and the United States.

In the years 1835 to 1850, we see the Lavertu family starting to migrate towards the Eastern Townships. The first family to leave the area of St.-Jean Chrysostome is Charles Lavertu. Louis Lavertu (married to Marie Vermette) was established in the region of St.-Henri and St.-Jean Chrysostome. His son Louis (married to Genevieve Laprise) remains in St.-Henri. (This family is our direct line). His son Jean (married to Theole Ferland) had children in St.-Henri and some in neighboring parishes such as St.-Isidore and St.-Michel. His son Olivier (married to Angele Laprise) stays in St.-Jean Chrysostome. His son François is married to Marie Blanchette and in that family we see a definite movement to the Eastern Townships. There is a large listing of other Lavertus in the book and the places to where they went, but that is not included here.

The fertility phenomenon of French-Canadian families is well known. The Lavertu family was no exception. It had continued to multiply in such a way that it's impossible to continue the history of the Lavertu family beyond the third generation without concentrating on one family, or on one particular branch. In fact, the Lavertu family started multiplying rapidly in the 1840's, when the families started emigrating from the geographic cradle of St.-Henri and St.-Jean Chrysostome. It is through genealogy that we see the gradual migration of the general population.

(We probably have Duperron relatives who did not change their name to Lavertu. Also, according to Paul Lavertu, brother of Joseph Leon Luc Lavertu, there are Lavertus, Perrons and Duperrons listed in Paris, France, and there are Perons in Spain today. The information here came from the Lavertu book compiled and researched by James Lavertu of Madawaska, Maine; but the above Paul Lavertu had researched the Lavertu genealogy and had given us all copies of our direct line back to Jean Guillaume Peyron of Avignon, France.)

Joe Lavertu: 'The Master Builder'

BY ESTHER KESSELMAN

GREENSBORO — Early in the 20th century, Hendrick Ibsen, the Scandinavian playwright, wrote a play entitled, "The Master Builder." It concerned itself with an architect who built churches with spires climbing to heaven.

Along came a younger man who decided to "Build Homes for Human Beings."

That slogan soon caught on to such an extent that the older man could not tolerate the competition. He withdrew.

Joe Lavertu did build homes for human beings and with each house he built, he reached for perfection. There are many of his houses in this community (Greensboro) and elsewhere. They will stand as a memorial to "a swell guy." He was not perfect but we loved him just as he was.

His French-Canadian accent was like music. He was our friend for many a year. Through adversity and prosperity, he was always a "hail fellow, well met."

Joe Lavertu was truly a colorful person and an interesting one.

In Joe Lavertu's death, we have lost "The Master Builder."

JULIEN FORTIN, SIEUR DE BELLE FONTAINE,
CO-SEIGNEUR DE LA CÔTE DE BEAUPRÉ, ET DE L'ÎLE D'ORLÉANS.

It was in 1657, that Charles of Lauson, seigneur (Lord) of Chambly, the King's Governor and Lieutenant General of New France, sold to Julien Fortin dit (surnamed) Bellefontaine, the share that he owned in the seigneurie of Beaupré, and the share he had in L'Île d'Orléans (Isle of Orleans), with all the buildings and sheds, and liabilities incurred at the founding of the company. (ROVER DE VILLERAY, NOTARY, AUG. 23, 1657)

With this purchase, the seigneur (lord) was required to develop his seigneurie. He had to recruit sharecroppers and to decide how much rent he would be paid as his share. As a general rule, the seigneur was the leader and model for his sharecroppers; clearing and cultivating a large piece of land himself.

For his share, Julien Fortin reserved two nice farms on the Côte of Beaupré (Coast of Beaupré), near Cap (Cape) Tourmente, and that is where we find him in the censuses of 1666, 1667, and 1681. Interesting detail: in addition to being a cultivator (farmer), seigneur Fortin practiced the trade of butcher.

Julien Fortin, sieur of Bellefontaine, and co-seigneur of Beaupré and of the Île d'Orléans, died in 1687, and was buried at St. Joachim. (According to the other article, the exact date of his death was unknown.)

He has many descendants. And we find many well-established in the region of L'Islet.

Lorraine Lanette Hussey - Tartin Family

My maternal grandparents, Omer and Adele (Tanguay) Tartin came to Greensboro in Sept., 1920, from St. Justine, province of Quebec, Canada. They purchased a farm in the village from Al DeBrune, who was Helen Lyle's father. At the time, it encompassed the house and barn, the field where the post-office and telephone office are now situated; the land where Cleora Carrier's house stands, the land on the same side as the house all the way down to the road near the nursing home, and the sugar-orchard was where the Hurwood Carrier house now stands across the road.

My grandfather had wanted to come to the United States for some time because some of their family and friends had previously immigrated to the area. But my grandmother would not come while her mother was still living, which was in the Quebec province of Canada. My grandfather was a blacksmith and my grandmother was a tailor. She had an assistant and had students or apprentices, and she specialized in men's coats and suits. My grandfather was one of the workers who made a large iron cross in the cemetery of St. Justine while a young man, and which still stands there today.

They had fifteen children, of whom five died in infancy including twin boys. Nine of the children came with them; the oldest girl, Alfreda, stayed in Canada where she was working, and later married, and lived in Quebec City. They continued farming for several years. My grandmother died of cancer in July of 1924 and was buried in St. Justine. My grandfather ^{with} married again in 1925 to a lady he had known in Canada, Olive Cate. He also met my father, Joseph Lanette, who came here to work for my grandfather on the farm. There he met my mother, Marie-Ange Tartin and they married in 1926.

The depression was a hard time for them, as with everyone else. They lost several cows which made it more difficult. Then my grandfather lost a twenty-three year old son, Gerard, in 1932, and that was the final blow for him. He sold the farm to a son Eugene, called "Jimmy" and left for Conn., and then a couple of years later they went back to Canada to Quebec City. Another son, Joseph, had a farm in the area, and he too left and went back to Canada. The other children, Bertha, Rosanne, Eugene (Jimmy), Leopold, Roland and Marie, left for Mass. and Conn. in the years 1934 to 1938, hoping to find jobs there. I don't know whether my Uncle "Jimmy" sold or lost the farm.

My father went into carpenter work and, at one time, he worked for Irving Hull. My parents moved to Hardwick Street and, eventually, to Hardwick Village. My father went into business for himself as a contractor in 1938-1939 building mostly barns at first. He became quite well-known in the area for this work. He repaired, renovated, and built many buildings around Caspian Lake. (His name was not mentioned in the book about Greensboro: The First Two Hundred Years, but he was well-known in the area as a contractor-carpenter.) The first cottage he built there was the Zschinelli cottage.

In the fall of 1966, my parents bought the Norman and Anna Michaud cottage near the public beach. My husband, Raymond, and I bought it from my siblings after the death of my father in 1975. My children and I and their families now enjoy it as an extended family-gathering place.

In the 1920's and 1930's many of the local residents of Greensboro worked for the "campers", - as they were called; in the households and in outside work.

My aunt, Rosanne Fortin, worked for the John Stones, and then for Sydney and Mary Stones.

My aunt, Bertha Fortin, worked for the Coaks, who lived across the road from the school on the left-hand side. Mr. Cook was a professor in New Haven, Conn. The Coaks took my aunt to New Haven to work for them there also. She remained in Conn..

My mother, Marie Fortin, worked for Tom and Constance Shoadward, and she went to work for them in Mount Vernon, N. J. in 1924. Her mother died in 1924 and she returned to help care for her siblings. While she was with the Shoadwards, she went to a ballgame and she saw Babe Ruth hit two home runs in that game. She told us that story many times. She remarked that Mr. Shoadward said he had never seen Babe Ruth hit a home run, and she had witnessed two in one game! My mother named one of her daughters Constance, for Mrs. Shoadward.

My aunt, Rosanne, and my uncle, Lillard, used to sell flowers, from their mother's flower garden, for 15¢ and 25¢ a bunch. My aunt said that she sold sweet peas every Sat. night near Thilleys store. These are some of the stories I remember hearing.

Lorraine Hussey

It was at St.-Léon-de-Tour, on Feb. 9, 1621, on the border of Parke, France, that the ancestor was baptized. Julien had one sister, Hélène, and three brothers: he was half-brother to eight other children by step-mother Julienne Guillemain. His father, with the same first name, was the son of Simon, and was a butcher by trade. Our ancestor lost his mother, Marie Lamy, at age 7, Nov. 24, 1628.

ARRIVAL IN CANADA

Robert Giffard, doctor, at that time was the owner of the seignory Beauport in New France, had visited in 1634, the well-known Chival-Blanc auberge (White Horse Inn) owned by Julien's maternal grandfather, Herveais Lamy. The future Julien Fortin was about 13 at the time and might have been impressed by the joyful stance of seigneur (lord) Giffard. In 1656, Robert Giffard returned to his native country. Several of the area, including Julien, decided to emigrate to Canada accompanying Giffard.

Julien, 29 years old, left from the seaport of Dieppe, in Normandy, and the crossing took three long months because of strong winds. The boat arrived in Quebec at the end of the summer of 1650. Among the passengers who came to America with Julien were Simon Rocheron and his sister, Marie; Samillard, carpenter; Claude Bauchard, tailor; Simon Green, ancestor of the L'Heureux, and many other emigrants.

PROSPEROUS AND BONA COLONIST

Only two months after arriving, Julien Fortin dit Bellefontaine (surnamed Bellefontaine) - perhaps because of his considerable savings, bought 5 arpents (old land measurement similar to our acre) of frontage at Ste. Anne d'Beaupre. He resold it to Robert Caron, March 27, 1654. (Notary Durand)

On Aug. 23, 1657, Julien became part owner of the seignory of Beauport and of the L'Isle d'Orleans. (Isle of Orleans) The former owner was Charles de Lauson-Charny, lieutenant of New France, son of Jean and Louise Giffard. Before the notary Rancor de Villeray, Julien purchased that share for 700 pounds (pounds minted in Tours, France) paid in beaver skins. On Feb. 11, 1662, he sold this to Monseigneur de Frontenac for 750 pounds.

June 4, 1659, the prosperous colonist received a concession of land of 6 arpents of frontage by 1 1/2 leagues deep at Cap Tourmentin. (A.S.G., St. Joachim, 92) This territory is now called Coteau-Fortin. In the census of the years 1654, 1667, and 1681, this is shown as his residence. In 1657, he had two servants named Leonard and Françoise Jarinet. He owned 3 arpents of good land and 7 heads of cattle in his stable. Julien lived in St. Joachim until his death.

was born! On the 10th of the following month, she was baptized by Father Paul Ragueneau, who was visiting at said Bellefontaine's house on the coast of Beauport. The godfather was Jean de Lauson, high senechal of the country. The godmother was Barbe Bismart, wife of Sieur Le Tardif, for whom the baby was named. And until June 15, 1677, spaced about twenty-three months apart, followed the latter children - Charles, Eustache - a major in the militia at Cap-St-Ignace, - Jacques, Henriette, Joseph, Marie-Anne, Julien, Pierre, Louis, Jean - baptized at the church of Ste. Anne de Beauport, - and Marguerite - the youngest. 8 sons - 4 daughters.

Large families bring great joy, but also, craves to bear. In 1687, Julien and Louis, ages respectively 20 and 16 passed away in the flower of their youth. That a tragedy, a few months earlier, Aug. 10, Pierre Hagnon, husband of the eldest daughter, Barbe, was buried at Ste. Anne de Beauport.

ST ANNE'S MIRACLE

Parish-priest, Thomas Morel, related in writing in 1687, the miracle accomplished through the intervention of Ste. Anne from Petit Cap, coast of Beauport in Canada. The following paragraph relates to the miraculous event around 1666 in favor of the Fortin family.

"Barbe Fortin, daughter of Julien Fortin Bellefontaine, former from Beauport, approximately 12 years old, suffering from blindness and in danger of death, was recommended to St. Anne by her father and mother, who made a vow and a novena, and was immediately cured upon completion of the novena." (ASPB, P-14, B1, Doc. 410, XVIII; photocopy of ASA, various parishes, 34)

LEHIE! CHRISTIAN SICKS

The exact date of death of the ancestor is not known. On June 13, 1687, Julien was godfather to his granddaughter, Marie, daughter of Simon and Née Hagnon. After that date, there is no further record. When Barbe was remarried to Pierre Lussard, April 16, 1690, Julien did not sign as witness, so it is assumed that he died between the two dates. (SAB, Special Record F, Urs Fortin, First Fortin of America, Julien Fortin, 1974) The colony had lost a great man.

Henriette Hamache continued to manage her deceased husband's assets. She spent her remaining days at her son Charles', at L'Islet, not far from her brother's domain, Nicolas Hamache dit Lamarre. She was buried at Notre-Dame de Bon Secours, at L'Islet, on Nov. 5, 1707.

On Aug. 17, 1777, a child from the 3rd generation of Estline, was ordained priest. Jean-Marie was parish priest of Sault-au-Laclet, of Lotbinière, and of Ste-Foye and of St-Jean, Ste d'Arles. He died at l'Hôpital-Général de Québec (General Hospital of Quebec) on Dec. 9, 1829. Buried at St-Jean, Ste d'Arles.

Honor be to the ancestors! Glory to Ste. Anne!

Sherrys

Henry Sherry was born in England in 1822. The Henry of John Sherry and Elizabeth Reed, and immigrated to settle in the U.S.A. in Canada. He was not sure at the date of place. He was married to Abigail (nee) of New Hampshire, but there are records found in either Vermont or New Hampshire. She knew that Henry Sherry lived in Halifax, N.S. and paid several property taxes there in 1845 and 1846. From 1847 through 1849, he owned land there and paid taxes on his average. Also listed at the same time was John Sherry paying average taxes. Could he have been Henry rather than an earlier? In the next century in Halifax there was a John Sherry who was born in 1818. He had debt from what records report 1857, as eight carpins a relationship.

Henry and Abigail Sherry had two children in Halifax, N.S. Henry George

Henry Sherry was born July 3, 1849 and daughter, Mary Abigail Sherry was born Feb. 5, 1851. After 1869, we are not sure where the Henry Sherry family lived, but they are not paying taxes on land in Halifax, N.S. Mary Abigail was married in Halifax, N.S. Oct. 22, 1876 to Andrew, Robert of Victoria,

P.Q., Canada. The first two children are Andrew Robert, Jr. and Ralph

Henry Robert. He knew that Ralph Henry was born in Victoria, P.Q. in 1878 and we assume that Andrew, Jr. was born there also, as his birth re cord is in Vermont. The taxation - Victoria, P.Q. early records showed in 1946, as cannot verify see the information. The Robert had another son, Henry F. Robert, born Feb. 27, 1905 in Victoria, N.S. His son, Ralph Henry Robert, was married Dec. 14, 1899 in Victoria, N.S. to Emily

Henry daughter of Abram and Martha (Emmett) Henry of Chatham, N.S.

Ralph and Emily Robert had a daughter, Margaret, born in Chatham, N.S.

Feb. 24, 1905. Henry F. Robert was married June 14, 1916 in Clarendon, N. Hamp.,

to Millie Johnson, of that place.

Henry Sherry was married to Joanna Baker, daughter of John and Margaret (Carnell) Baker, in Halifax, N.S. on Jan. 29, 1887. On his marriage certificate, Joanna Baker states that she was born in Victoria, P.Q. and March 17, 1863. They both list their residence as Victoria, P.Q. Their son, Henry Robert Sherry was born April 20, 1887 and always listed his residence as Victoria, P.Q. He was baptised Jan. 1, 1888, and St. Ignace

Catholic church in Halifax. P.Q. George Henry lists his residence as farm with his mother, and Andrew. Robert lists his as farm, etc.

In my research I found the relation from Stanstead County, P.Q.

"I have relinquished to my son, George A. Sherry, the remainder of the minority; Henry Sherry, Halifax, N.S. Sept. 8, 1868. This was explained to me as meaning "I have relinquished to my son, Charles the full, I found another" a similar document to my son, Charles

31. Sherry, the remainder of the minority; John Sherry, Halifax, N.S.

May 29, 1873. And another, "All persons here touching matters that do touch any person, including members of my family, or my account without a written order as I shall refuse payment and all bills unless I have not authorized. The same; John Sherry, Halifax, N.S. May 13, 1870

Mary Abigail (Sherry) and Andrew, Robert, born in Chatham, N.S.

when they bought the farm at Nathan Kempton in Chatham, N.S. on Sept. 3, 1840. This farm he bequeathed to the daughter being that #10 and the 4th range, and 50 acres of the westerly end of lot # 11 in the 4th range, which is listed at times as East Greensboro, Vt. This sale included the sugar utensils, and one mowing machine for $3000. Payments were to be made with annual interest of $100; taxes were to be paid; and the buildings were to be insured.

Also, assigned to Nathan Keniston as security, was a life insurance policy, No. 30611, on the life of her father, Henry Hussy, of which Mary Hussy Bedell was the beneficiary. Henry Hussy was a widower at the time, living with his daughter. The date that he knew when or where his wife, Abigail Fogg Hussy, died; nor where she is buried. Henry lived twenty-two years longer. He died in Greensboro, Vt. on Oct. 14, 1912 at 90 years. The funeral service was held at his home, George Henry, and the death was reported by his daughter, Mrs. A. J. Bedell. He was buried in the Greensboro village cemetery. There is no monument, and no available cemetery records; but he must have been buried in the old section.

Andrew and Mary Bedell also leased a farm for one year from A. H. Soule, from May 10, 1892 to May 10, 1893 for the annual rent of $100 and that lease was witnessed on Nov. 29, 1892, by her brother, George Henry Hussy and his wife, Joanna Hussy. So we know that the Husseys were in Greensboro, Vt. in 1890-1892.

George Henry and Joanna Hussy lived in several different houses in Greensboro village. In the Greensboro census of 1900, George Hussy was listed as a day laborer; and Andrew Bedell was listed as a farmer. George Henry worked for several different people and also worked in the woods, lumbering.

In 1901-1904 Andrew J. Bedell left Greensboro and was working in Lisbon, N. Hamp., but was back in Greensboro in early 1905, and then was a farmer and carpenter. His son, Ralph Henry, owned a share in a sawmill in Greensboro village with Nelson Feldt, in which he sold his share in Jan. 1896. Later, he owned a share in another sawmill in East Greensboro in the area of the Bedell farm. Ralph and Aline Bedell had a farm agency and sold property also.

In May-June of 1905, George Henry and Joanna Hussy bought a farm of 25 acres from Sarah Ferrin (widow of Asahel Ferrin who had bought that farm from Nathan Keniston), East Greensboro and in March of 1906, they moved onto the farm. The Bedell children and George Parker Hussy attended the East Greensboro school.

In the 1910 Greensboro census, George Henry Hussy is listed, but not A. J. Bedell. There is an O. Bedell listed? Could this be Olive?

Ralph and Aline Bedell bought the Huxton farm, and moved onto it in Oct. 1913 but a little later they rented the farm and moved into a Thebster house. Thebster family owned a sawmill there in East Greensboro. In July 1917, Andrew and Ralph Bedell sold a farm they owned together to Moody and Fattie Belknap. In Sept. 1918, the Thebster sawmill burned. In Dec. 1917, there was a lawsuit tried in Newport, Vt.; Andrew Hill vs Andrew Bedell, Sr and Andrew Bedell, Jr., and it was decided in favor of Andrew Hill. After that I didn't find anymore mention of Andrew J. and Mary Bedell. In Jan. 1918, Ralph and Aline Bedell moved to St. Johnsbury and in July 1922 they are in Peterboro, New Hamp., and they sold 1 two acres of land in Greensboro to Austin Fuller, and later they are in Nashua, New Hamp. Ehen I do not find the Bedells mentioned again in Greensboro. Mary Hussey Bedell died in Berkshire, Ct., Dec. 31, 1940 at 89 years. Her son, George Bedell reported the death. Her husband was still living at the time and I have not found a death record for him.

In addition to their son, George Parker Hussey, George Henry and Joanna Hussey reared a foster daughter whom they named Alice Hussey. She went to school in Greensboro. I don't have much information about her. She was married twice or more, once to a Needham and the last to Ed Huggins, who was in the service in World War II. She had a daughter, Frances, who married an O'Neill, and at one time she lived in Durham, New Hamp. and had four or five children.

George Parker Hussey was a stonecutter and was married to Emma Georgiamona LaLiberte (Liberty) on Oct. 14, 1913 in St. Johnsbury. Her parents were French-Canadian - Martin and LaLiberte - families who immigrated in the 1870's to the St. Johnsbury and North Ferrisville areas. George Parker and Emma Hussey lived in St. Johnsbury, and I'm not sure when they moved to Greensboro. Her children were all born in Greensboro as Joanna Hussey was a midwife, so Emma came to Greensboro for the birth of her daughter, Irene, in 1915. Son, Carl, was born in 1917, and I think they were still living in St. Johnsbury. They were in Greensboro when son, Leo, was born in 1921, and son, Raymond, born in 1923.

In Feb. 1917, George Parker and Emma Hussey bought the Betsey Hunt (Church) farm of 147 acres, and the Withere farm of 70 acres, and leased it to his parents. George Henry and Joanna Hussey sold their place to Alex Hockie (Hockey) and moved onto their soil farm. When the younger Husseys moved to their farm, there were two apartments in the house for them. They farmed and made many improvements to the buildings. George Hussey (Parker) also was employed at the Ambrose stone shed in Hardwick, but I don't know the exact years.

George Henry Hussey died in Greensboro in Sept. 1926, and was buried in St. Michael's cemetery in Greensboro Bend, and later was moved to the cemetery in St. Johnsbury. Then, after his death, Joanna Hussey made her home with her son and family. George Parker raised potatoes and the price dropped, and with the depression, there were hard times, as with everyone else. He next to work in the potato shed in Greensboro Bend, and the dirt there was very bad for his health. He had been a stonecutter for years, and with the dirt in his lungs from the potato shed, he ended up in the Pittsford, Vt. sanatorium with silicosis, commonly known as stone-cutter's tuberculosis. He died there in July 1937.

Emma Hussey carried on the farms with her sons, but the farm was in financial trouble, and an administrator was appointed by the court and the bank to ward off bankruptcy. She was allotted fifty dollars a month out of the milk check every month, and the balance was applied to the bank mortgage. Herk had graduated from school and was out working, but there were still five people to feed and clothe, and to meet other expenses. This continued until sometime in 1939.

With the advent of World War II, the sons went into the branches of service, and Emma could no longer carry on the farm. The farm was sold in 1942 to Everett and Josephine Young, who were neighbors. Carl served in the Navy, Leo in the Army, and Raymond in the Army Air Corps. Emma moved to New Haven, Conn. and lived with her relatives there for the duration of the war. Joanna Hussey went to live with her foster daughter, Alice Huggins in Pittsfield, Vt.

Leo attended Greensboro High School but left for the service. There, Carl and Raymond all graduated from there. Raymond attended radio-operator school for a year in Waterbury, Vt.

Irene married Arthur Bradley Tharren, from Hardwick. He became a lab technician and they moved to Michigan. There they had three children, Stephanie, Arthur Bradley III, and Michael. She has three grandchildren, and one great-grandson. Her husband died in 1990, and is buried in Michigan. Irene married C. A. Griffin Dec. 1999.

Carl married Lucille Brooker of Hardwick Street, and they had two children, George and Claire. George had two children. Claire had a daughter, ^{Lisa} and has three grandsons. Carl and Lucille lived in Greensboro Bend, and he was a rural mail carrier. He also had second jobs - clerking in Charlie and Kay Cook's store, and working in Lester Gobbie's garage in East Hardwick. Carl died in Jan. 1983, and Lucille in June, 1987, and both are buried in St. Michael's cemetery in Greensboro Bend, Vt. George and Claire now live in Mass.

Leo married Theresa Guay of Hardwick, and they lived in Greensboro Bend, where they had four children, Rachelle, Dennis, Anita and Tony (Anthony). Leo worked at the Purina - Checkerboard feed store until they went out of business. He did plumbing later, and was a cable-taker. Theresa died in August 1989 and Leo died in May, 1998, and they are both buried in St. Michael's cemetery, Greensboro Bend, Vt. Rachelle has a daughter and lives in South Carolina. Dennis has two daughters and a granddaughter, and lives in Newport, Vt. Anita lived in California for a time and had a daughter there. She now lives in Jeffersonville, Vt. Tony lives in the Hardwick area.

Raymond married Lorraine Lanette of Hardwick and they lived in Hardwick. He worked for New England Tel. and Tel. Co. for 37 years. Lorraine and he owned a ladies' apparel store in Hardwick for over thirty years - Rasette's Dress Shop. They had six children, Kevin, Lisa, Patrick, Andrea, Valerie and Allison. Kevin lives in South Hero, Vt. and has one daughter; Lisa lives in Morrisville and has a daughter and son. She owns a children's apparel store in Stowe, Vt. - The Yellow Turtle. Patrick lives in Thalden, Vt. and has a son and daughter. Andrea lives in Montpelier, Vt. and has a son and daughter. Valerie lives in Hardwick, Vt. and has a son and daughter. Allison lives in St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands. Raymond died in Feb. 1990 and is buried in Fairview cemetery in Hardwick, Vt.

Maxna Hussey died in 1946, and Emma Hussey died in August, 1967. All these four Husseys are buried in Mt. Calvary cemetery in St. Johnsbury. I do not know when or where Alice Hussey Higgins died.

This is the information that I have to date about the Hussey family
